
Jump start your career with Carnegie Mellon University Silicon Valley!

Are you interested in becoming a software engineer? Do you aspire to be involved in an entrepreneurial venture in the software industry? If so, you should explore the masters degree programs Carnegie Mellon University Silicon Valley has to offer.

In 2002, Carnegie Mellon University established its Silicon Valley campus at Moffett Field in Mountain View, California to offer its world-renowned professional programs in software engineering and software management, to perform innovative research that connects it to local companies, and to support the careers of all Carnegie Mellon alumni.

We will be coming to UCLA on Wednesday, October 13, 2010. Join us to learn more about our programs; MS in Software Engineering and MS in Software Management. Meet with the director of admissions and faculty and learn how you can advance your career with one of the strongest brand names in software engineering education.

Wednesday, October 13, 2010
Location: Boelter Hall 4760
Time: 6:00 - 7:00 pm

Refreshments will be provided.

If you are unable to attend an information session, you can request more information by filling out a form located at the following link:
<https://inq.applyyourself.com/?ID=CMU-SV&PID=1394>

For questions about Carnegie Mellon Silicon Valley, please contact Chris Zeise, Associate Director of Admissions, at chris.zeise@sv.cmu.edu or 650/335-2810
