Morning Sign Out

Morning Sign Out is a digital health company that looks to combine the best aspects of healthcare and technology. Our goal is to fuse the best aspects of technology and medicine to revolutionize healthcare for the 21st century and disrupt traditional systems of medical care. These traditional systems are outdated, inefficient, and expensive, costing the world $6.3 trillion annually.

We aim to change that.

As part of the MSO Digital Team, you will work with other team members to work on app or web development. Your specific role would be a part-time internship that aids in the development of experimental clinical applications for iOS.

Flexible time commitment of approximately 2 hours/week. Please note if internship credit is desired and more hours per week are needed for academic requirements, please discuss with your team at acceptance so we may tailor the experience for you.

Remote options are available.

Please note this position is currently unpaid.

General prerequisites:
-Knowledge of at least one programming language
-Able to write clean code easily understood by other collaborating developers
-Able to debug errors and take measures to prevent future issues
-Prioritize application maintainability, extensibility, and flexibility
-Refine application performance and adhere to good design patterns
-Good communication and teamwork skills
-Be open to collaborating with others
-Willing to provide thoughtful input through the design/development process
-Have a positive attitude towards learning and applying knowledge in a hands-on environment
-Willing to learn necessary skills to contribute to their respective team

Requirements:
-Knowledge of Objective-C and Cocoatouch framework (or willing to learn)
-Including but not limited to Core Data, Core Graphics, Core Animation, etc.
-Interested in designing UI/UX for a wide audience range using prototyping tools and build custom UIViews and animation
-Interested in developing and deploying advanced health and fitness related applications for the iOS platform
-Access to or ownership of iOS device

Application can be found here: http://morningsignout.com/recruitment/
Please send your resume to executivestaff@morningsignout.com