

ONEHEARTSOURCE Winter Program

Attention member of the Civil and Environmental Engineering Department!

ONEHEARTSOURCE is a student-initiated volunteer opportunity in Tanzania, East Africa.

With little sustainable health care infrastructure or equal distribution of resources in most developing countries, the need for change is urgent; yet the implementation of constructive change needs to be done with passionate consideration and motivated self-initiative. You can help!

Volunteer with One Heart Source as a teacher and mentor in a village in the Arusha Region of Northern Tanzania. Gain international experience, live with a Tanzanian family, learn Swahili, and involve yourself in development & aid, global health, education, and much more!

JOIN OUR WINTER 2012 PROGRAM!

January 9 - February 8, 2012

* Live with a Maasai family and become an active member in their household

* Improve the quality of education through leading an English-intensive program in a public high school in rural Tanzania

* Converse about HIV/AIDS prevention, family planning, and community health to adults and children in neighboring home-stays

* Work with a small, dynamic team of international university students

Be a part of our movement for sustainable social change. Together, we can make a lasting impact; in our own lives and in the lives of others.

Apply now for our Winter Programs!

APPLICATIONS DUE: Friday, October 28

For more information and to download the program application, please visit: www.oneheartsource.org/volunteer

<<http://www.oneheartsource.org/volunteer>>

ONEHEARTSOURCE is a non-profit organization dedicated to promoting the growth and development of education in rural communities in Sub-Saharan Africa. www.oneheartsource.org <<http://www.oneheartsource.org>>